From one of the most exciting new and talented American composers comes Ordinary Days, a refreshingly honest, funny and beautiful music theatre gem about making real connections with people, despite our increasingly complex modern lives.

Ordinary Days is an original musical for anyone in a big city who's struggled to appreciate the simple things in life. It tells the story of four young New Yorkers whose lives intersect on bustling streets and quiet rooftops as they search for fulfilment, happiness, love and cabs.

Through a score of vibrant and memorable songs, their experiences ring startlingly true of the universal aim to craft one's own life story. With equal doses of humour and poignancy, Ordinary Days celebrates how millions of individual stories combine in unexpected ways to map each life as an extraordinary journey.

Featuring Helen Janke, Leigh Hindle, Tash Jenkins and Connor Deakin.

Poem of the month

WRITTEN BY JIM CARLISLE.

JUST LOVE ME FOR WHO I AM

When he was born, his father thought,
at last I have a son.
So off he went down to the pub,
it was cigars for everyone.

The excitement was too much, he'll be a rugby player just like me.
I'll bet he's into camping and fishing,
just you wait and see.

As he grew up he showed no signs
of liking any sort of sport.
His dad wasn't too impressed with his son or people of his sort.

Instead of doing macho stuff he learned to do sewing instead,
with the feeling of never being good enough
for his dad, running through his head.

So every time they worked together
his dad would get really wild,
maybe he couldn't handle this feminine boy that was his child.

So the boy worked hard to impress
his dad, but he knew he never could,
with his dad looking down his nose at him just like he was dead wood.

So parents can be a grumpy lot
always pointing the blame,
but children own their mind and
body, to them there is no shame,

Our lives are not forever and his dad
grew to accept him in his final year.
But half a life was wasted not accepting the thought of his son being queer.

We all have an influence on others, our direction can be where we nudge, but why screw with another person's mind, because who are we to judge?

We can't leave children thinking the only way to being loved is if they reform,
Just think if you look at life threw their eyes, to them they are the norm.

Sun 19 Feb 3.30pm	ANNOUNCING QUORUM (a combination of the words 'queer' and 'forum'). Quorum presents an opportunity for those in the LGBTIQ community to come together and have a conversation on a variety of topics. The first such conversation takes place on Sunday 19th February at 3.30pm in The Birdcage at Sodens Hotel, Albury, when Jason Ball and Rowena Allen help us explore the 'coming out' journey: why come out?, when to come out?, is there a right or wrong way to come out?, do I have to come out?, and is particularly suited to young people, but anyone is welcome. A gold coin donation would be greatly appreciated to help defray our costs. An AUSLAN interpreter will be present to translate. At the conclusion of the conversation, you are invited to remain and enjoy a meal with our speakers and other participants (at your own expense).	Because this will be a very popular event, those attending MUST send an email to gain a seat - limited to the first 50 people. Please don't just turn up on the day without emailing first, and receiving a confirmation email in return. Those just turning up will be disappointed.
